Hongsong, June 5TH, 1890.

THE Shanghai Missionary Conference came to a close on the 20th May, having sat for twelve days. It was attended by some four hundred and thirty persons, and the gathering was a remarkable and important one

The influence exercised by these four hundred and thirty missionaries on the natives with whom they come in contact must necessarily be very great; to make it still greater. to discover the methods by which the best results may be attained, it is well that they should from time to time meet together in conference to compare notes and profit by each others experience. Are missions a three children who were drowned great failure? is a question which has recently been under discussion. The answer must depend upon what is meant by success Certainly, so far as China is concerned, and son and Co, is expected to arrive here on Monlooking at the matter from a worldly point of view, we cannot hold that there has been failure. subjects dealt with, on some of which differences of opinion may prevail, but would call attention to one matter in reference to which every one will wish the missionaries Godspeed. We refer to the efforts made for the elevation of the position of woman in China Of the four hundred and thirty persons attending the conference a considerable number were ladies, who were admitted to full membership, and several papers by ladies were read and discussed. In the course of the discussion Dr. Y. J. ALLEN said the sentiment of the Chinese in regard to female education was changing; the Chinese newspapers claimed that the Chinese were not indifferent, but had allowed female education to larse into desuctude : women had been comparatively neglected, but the men were now becoming ashamed of this and apologised for it. Dr. EDEINS spoke in the same strain and cited Dr. WILLIAMS as authority for the statement that the education of women has always been considered respectable in China. Footbinding, he said, would disappear before education; the custom was 123 but eight centuries old, a short time in a country like China. A committee was an pointed to prepare a report on Women Work, which on being subsequently presented to the conference was adopted in the form of a series of resolutions. One of these resolutions was on the subject of footbinding. and it was the only one of the series which was modified before being adopted As it came up from the committee it read:—"That we as missionaries cannot take too decided a stand against the crue custom of footbinding," etc. One gentleman objected to the phrase "cannot take too decided a stand;" he said he thought it might be possible to take strong ground on the matter, at 1 Mornington avenue, West Konsington, for and that unbinding the feet ought not to be made a condition of Church membership. One lady, whose name is not given in the minutes published by the Shanghai papers, made the statement, which we think will take most people by surprise, that footbind ing is still practised in Mission schools. I this be so, the practice certainly ought to be discontinued. Any school in which it was known that footbinding was practised would. Mexico. This is part of the legislation pending we think, receive very little pecuniary support from the Christain public at home or. from foreigners in China. The resolution was, however, modified, and was adopted in the following form: - "That we as missionaries whom he was in roduced by Sir Halliday Maccontinue to maintain a decided stand against the cruel custom of foot-binding; and we yet, owing to Her Majesty's absence on the Conwould urge that renewed and persistent efforts be made to arouse public sentiment against this evil, with the hope that the time is not far distant when the education and culture of the young ladies of this country tions to China will be fixed for a long period of will be properly appreciated, and bound feet

'HE OPIUM RABIT AND ICS CURE In an article on the Shanghai Missionary Conference the Chinese Times says : - As regards Optum the missionaries, or certain sectious of them, have been fighting blindly for many years against an acknowledged evil, with absolutely no success. On the contrary, the evil grows worse all the time, and now some of them honestly admit that their mithods have been wrong. Indeed the charge they make against themselves is of a very serious nature, for on the pretence of caring one disease they have introduced a far more dangerous one, and having gone out of their way to feel scandalized by the association of the foreign name with Opinen they have now succeeded in attaching the name of Christianity itself to the new created vice of morphia-enting. LINGLISH AND CHINESE DICTIONARY. WITH THE PUNTI AND MANDABIN PRONUNCIATION. An Anglo-Chinese Dictionary, published at the Daily Press Office, Hongkong. For comprehensiveness and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have of late years been compelled to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in extenso. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises for students of a most instructive nature. Both the Court and Punti pronunciations are given the accents being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. The typography displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspond in the size of body, thereby effecting a vast economy of space, achieving a clearness not previously attained, and dispensing with those vast margins and vacant spaces which have heretofore characterized Chinese publications.

To illustrate the vast scope of the work the following facts are submitted for consideration :-Chalmers' Vocabulary contains about 16,009 Chinese characters, and Medhurst's English and Chinese Dictionary about 100,000, whilst I this work contains more than 50,000 English words, and upwards of 600,000 Chinese characstudent of this difficult language absolutely recations and equivalents of different words which have one general meaning. Of these examples this work contains more than five times as many as any other Dictionary hitherto pull-

For practical purposes the arrangement of the work is so complete, that a reference to its pages enables a person who understands English to communicate effectively, with natives who understand nothing but Chinese. In this respect the work will be found indispensable to all Europeans residing in China, and to the natives themselves it explains subjects fully with which very few indeed of them are perfectly acquainted. To parties resident in England and interested in China it cannot but be invaluable occasion-

It comprises upwards of two thousand large 4 Vols. Imperial Quarto, Price, $20. A Large REDUCTION in PRICE is made to Purchasers of SIX or more Copies.
